Despite the the Windows Loader v1.0's limitations on how many Windows partitions can be added during a single bootable USB image, it appears to do a good job partitioning the image into DriveD and the System Drive. The program seems to auto detect the existing partitioning on the USB Stick. I tested the old and new version of the Windows Loader with a USB Stick I had formatted to contain a few partitions. The same USB Stick has been partitioned in the 595f342e71
