It's time to meet the newest creation from BioWare! As part of the Reapers' diabolical plans, a massive number of stars are falling to their new planet - the only issue is that the planet is only habitable as the result of a catastrophic supernova. The fate of humanity now rests in your hands. Using the power of the Catalyst - a collection of four powerful leaders who can combine into a single being - you must guide a group of humanity's finest heroes - the Pathfinder party - into a new world, where you face off against a new threat. For more info on SteamWorld Heist visit: Support on SteamWorld: SteamWorld Heist is an upcoming platform-adventure game for PC and consoles featuring non-player characters (NPCs) where players control a heroic orphaned robot who must embark on a perilous adventure throughout the nefarious Cornucopia Platform. The player must vent his/her frustrations by partaking in a one-of-a-kind, fully cooperative, narrative experience which they both create and experience. The plot starts as an elaborate heist, led by a mysterious character named Atlas who hopes to take control of the Cornucopia Platform (CP). But when Atlas is killed, the team splits up. Each gets a tracking device and must do their own thing. As players go about their business, they'll delve into worlds, engage in dialogue and complete objectives, eliminating other robots. By listening and responding to their surroundings, players create and set the tone of the world. After completing a challenge, they can trade or fight, or simply watch the story unfold around them. If that sounds appealing, then you might want to check out the first episode of the SteamWorld Heist season, 'Hatbox: Four 1 Free'. It'll be up for download this weekend (actually, it's already up). Game "Hatbox: Four 1 Free (SteamWorld Heist)" Gameplay: The SteamWorld Heist games are all available for the Nintendo Switch now! What's new:

From the album that reinvented the role of the megalomaniac artist in the 20th century, Golden Light was the anthem of a billion-dollar entertainment industry. You wouldn't even call the Meat Songs Melodramas; they're something more restrained and somber than that—their emotional peaks and valleys are gloriously sharp, and their lyrics make you feel like you're right there in the room with the performers. You can almost see the walls shake, and the bed shake, and the curtains shake when Lloyd sings about his fragile relationship with his wife. There's so much more to it than Del

Shannon, and you're going to love the part where it goes over the speed of light. I guarantee you. This oeuvre is chock-full of successes. The one everybody remembers best is "Bobby Darin," the first single from the album, whose original version and vocalese are both about ending a fling. "We were like two shining lights in the middle of nowhere," Smith tells us over a dreamy, sax-driven backbeat. "Why don't you stop pretending and play with me instead?" That's one of my favorite lines, and I listened to the ABBA-sounding music associated with it just now because I can envision the scene and Smith's shining mouth in my head. Then there's "Louella," about a happily married couple going about their business after the dishes are done. "You loved your own laugh-out-loud joke about Tolstoy. You like to collect your love like a portrait in a book. So please don't confuse me. Love is as good as love gets." It's so true; you can practically smell the image that comes with that line: mealtime, tablecloth, cozy details like that. And "Try It," about some terrible action producing a terrible outcome. Like I said, the emotional peaks and valleys are gloriously sharp. Del Shannon's lyric is breathy and vocal-y: "I found a lonely graveyard where I could be alone," he sings after a detached, chilling sigh. But then the song rises to a passionate, staccato piano break, and suddenly Smith wants to be alone, but can she get away from the Internal Light VR is a solo escape the room game. The title is a sequel to the original Escape the Room game by I Love Bees. Escape the room, but this time in VR, where you must solve puzzles to escape from the room and get to safety. Game Features: A NEW game for 2016, mixed with previous Escape Room game features and new ones. SOLO gameplay in virtual reality NEW puzzles and challenges with new difficulty options (tier based from easy, medium, and hard). 8 Rooms / 30 Minutes of gameplay each. 6 Puzzles to solve in each room. Oculus Rift & Gear VR available (not for Vive). Themes include: Ground Zero Mad Max Space Explorers Saw (housetrap) Saw II Universal Monsters There are more! Escape the room but this time in VR. The player escapes a room filled with puzzles and other challenges to get to safety. In Internal Light VR this is a prison, and the puzzles are working devices designed to trap the player. At the start of the game there is not much that the player needs to do other than get in the room, but as the game progresses the player needs to figure out how to escape, and with that comes a slew of challenges like: solving a Rubik's Cube puzzle by pressing keys with the controller, unlocking and opening a cabinet to retrieve keys to open more doors, solving a brain teaser puzzle in which the player needs to deduce the answer from clues given in the virtual environment, solve a few logic puzzles, and climb through two floors of a shack before finding a window to get to the airlock, and more! Game Length: Around 30 minutes in total. Follow the instructions on how to play the game from your leader (ie: Play this game first, then come back to this page and play the other games listed on this page). Good game for solo-gaming in VR. New releases for 2016. For more information visit our website: www.internallightvr.com Create your own celestial symphony with Space Symphony, an exclusive VR title from a collaboration between Bully Media and In Reality Software. Space Symphony will put you in control of eight instruments as you explore a stunning universe. Play music as the sun, space, or moon while you create original melodies across nine unique locations and five extraordinary instruments. Reimagine the cosmos by creating and arranging music in space — the final frontier.
